Officers Reports

Baron and Baroness

Greetings and other salutations,

The first February event was Le Crappaud, where much fun was had and new Baronial Champions & the new Crappaud were chosen. Congratulations to Sebastian (Rapier Champion), Wolf (Heavy Champion) & Kitan (vive Le Crappaud!). In the following week St Aldhelm's held the o-week demo that generated a lot of interest and supplied an abundance of newcomers for the Quest. Since the college will be hibernating for the next few months all the newcomers will be enthusiastically bugging all of us.

Our Baronial Guard keep us entertained, fight and assist us in many ways and Rodri, Cynric and Owain have served for a year, at Le Crappaud we released them from our service. But we cannot be without our guard and so admitted Taliesin and Sigmund to our baronial guard, keeping Jonathan on the guard so that he might teach them what to do and serve the rest of his year.

It seems that all anyone can talk about is Rowany Festival and their frenetic preparations. We invite all Politarchopolians to a pot-luck feast in the Polit Central campsite on the Monday night of Rowany Festival.

Yours in Service,
Leta, Baroness

Edmund, Baron.

Seneschal

This month has seen several excellent events within the Barony, with St Blasius, Le Crappaud and St Valentine Potluck Picnic along with the College bringing lots of eager new faces with the o-week demo and Quest. Congratulations Catula, it was an excellently run event and lots of fun!

There will be a change in office this coming month with the Baronial Marshallate changing over. More about that later in GT.

We have a number of events coming up over the next couple of months. But as it really is now only "2 weeks to go" until festival I am sure most people will be busily preparing as will I. Don't forget to volunteer for something at Festival, the more people that help out the easier and more fun it is for everybody!

Good luck with the pre-festival rush of activity and I hope to see you all there!

Yours in service,
Alesia de Cheval Blanc

Greetings unto the populace,

Greetings unto the populace,

This period has been relatively quiet with things now starting to pick up. St Blasius was a weekend event (Fri 28th - Sun 30th Jan) of music, singing and dancing. There were 30 attendees. Classes taught were on rounds and carolling (Crispin Sexi), rhythm in musical notation (Crispin Sexi), types of musical instruments (various people), playing background music in court (Arian of Shadowvale), "Missa Festivalis" (Crispin Sexi), Victoria's "O Vos Omnes" (Bethan of Brockwood), keys and modes (Crispin Sexi), and also two dances (Joanna of the Beechwoods). There was a feast, a ball and a concert. Isobel la Breton won the St Blasius Cup for entertainment at the concert, but no other A&S awards were given. Oriol of the Gypsies did a marvellous job as head cook.

Stich 'n' Bitch will start up again in the first week in March (just in time for festival). The format will be is, 1st and 3rd Thursday of the month, Southside at Raven's Nest (Morag Freyzer's). The 2nd will be run Northside, at the Baron and Baroness' Keep.

Next competition

Metalworking: jewellery or small ornamental accessories
 Engineering & research: A contraption for travel
 Herbal: Hygiene/ grooming products

I need to find a local event that will be run before May Crown as the kingdom competition will be run there.

Dance Classes have started up again on Sunday afternoons at Haig Park Hall.

Captain of Fence

Greetings.

A very successful Valentine's Tourney was run in conjunction with Le Crapaud on 12 February. Eight fighters took part:

Boris the Black (RMIC)
 Jasper Joffray
 Sebastian de Sade
 Gabrielle of the Marshes
 Basil Faulke
 Diccon Shorthand
 Don Francois Henri Guyon
 Owain Cantor ap Hugh

Don Francois was the victor, Diccon was named most chivalrous and Owain was awarded for best period appearance on the field (a close thing, as the fighters set a particularly high standard). Thanks to our newly named Corsair, Carlos Corvacho, for marshalling the bouts, to Michelle for looking after the list and Don Dameon Greybeard for heralding Don Francois in all his abundantly titled glory.

Following the tourney, Her Excellency named Sebastian de Sade her Rapier Champion for the coming year.

Four authorisation bouts were successfully conducted during the month. Jasper Joffray was newly authorised in combat, Simon Puddleduck renewed his combat authorisations and was authorised as a marshal and both Boris the Black and Carlos Corvacho upgraded their authorisations to become marshals.

A melee workshop and authorisation will be conducted at Sunday training on 6 March at Haig Park, to allow fighters to upgrade their authorisations ahead of Festival, where there will be a Team Challenge Tourney and two melee sessions.

A reminder to all rapier fighters to check that their authorisations are up to date and contact me if necessary. When authorisations are conducted, fighters should ensure they get copies from the authorising marshal – one to prove their authorised status and one to give me, so that any delays in getting cards can be followed up.

There were no injuries reported during the month.

As RMIC, I look forward to seeing a strong contingent of Politarchopolis fencers at Festival.

Greetings,

There are finally some submissions starting to come in and there seems to be plenty of people thinking about their names and devices. A bunch of names and devices have recently been approved by the Laurel Sovereign of Arms and more are expected soon.

Events

Owain ap Cantor ap Hugh was made a member of the Queen's Guard and awarded an AoA, Sigmund Spelman was appointed Royal Archer and Ysabella Vitale was awarded a Nock. Congratulations to all and my personal thanks to Sigmund for heralding.

Le Crapaud and Valentine's Pot Luck Picnic was held on 12 February. The new Rapier Champion is Sebastian de Sade, the new Heavy Champion is Wolff Hebenstreit and the new Baronial Guards are Taliesin of Entangled Marsh and Sigmund Spelman. Heinrich Maximillian von Hesse was awarded the Politarchopolis Fellowship of Grace.

Congratulations to all and my thanks to Sigmund for assisting with the heralding at the event.

Greetings and Salutations!

Not much to say. Griffinscar will be produced and available by the weekend. This issue of Griffintayle was going to be late but I have my net access back earlier than expected (a curse on all ISP head's). The Menagerie moved two weekends ago and the new details are in the Polit household listing. My home phone number remains the same.

I hope everyone enjoys Festival! Another special Festival edition will be put together for release sometime in April. Stories are happily accepted through e-mail or verbally to the Baron or Baroness as I will not be attending due to family commitments.

I'd like it to be known that I am currently the keeper of the Polit regalia. So if you need tablecloths, banners etc at an event you plan on running, give me a call and we can discuss. Only thing I ask you to remember is if you borrow it, you must wash it!

Festival Set-up Weekend

Set-up weekend is the 19th-20th of March 05

Fifth Annual Best Looking Banners and Flags Campsite Competition

Unto the Populace of Lochac does John of the Hills send greetings.

The Fifth Annual Best Looking Banners and Flags Campsite competition will be judged at Rowany Festival during the Saturday and Sunday.

The idea behind the competition is to improve the overall medieval effect during festival by having many banners and flags flying throughout the campsites. The winner will be announced sometime during Sunday evening. The prize is a case of alcoholic cider and a new addition of some non-alcoholic drink as well. Last years winner was House Accipiter, who had a wonderful series of banners along the path next to their campsite. Previous winners were House Louvain from St Florian, the River Haven Barony and the household called Artisanian, also from River Haven. House Accipiter, a Politarkoplian household, broke the stranglehold that the groups up North were having on the competition.

If you don't have a registered device then please see your local herald about how to get one. Otherwise you could make household or SCA group banners. If you need ideas on how to make a good display ask a friendly herald about how to best display a device. See the Compleat Anachronist pamphlet, number 50, called Heraldic Display for ideas. Another option is do some research on medieval displays. I want to see lots of colour and movement from many banners and flags. Bunting is good too.

Good Luck.

 Blossfechten at Festival 2005
- "unarmoured" combat with sword, long-sword, and sword and buckler.

At this coming Rowany Festival, on the Sunday morning at the main list field, the Royal Guild of Defence will hold a series of fechtschules, displays of skill and of learning, and amongst them will be one of interest to heavy authorised fighters.

The Blossfechten will be a set of matches of sword, sword and buckler, and long-sword, fought under heavy rules, but with assumed armour being "none".

The idea being for people to experiment with period styles and to do something different.

Entrants will need to be heavy authorised, we should have spare long-swords and bucklers available to borrow.

Armour worn beyond the minimum is, of course, up to the fighters, but assumed armour is "none" so blow strength and calling should reflect that.

A "sword" is a basket hilted broadsword, the usual SCA sword, thrusting tips are strongly recommended.

A "buckler" is a small centre grip round-shield (although other shapes are fine), about the length of your forearm in diameter.

A "long-sword" is a sword with thrusting tip about the length of a broadsword, but used with two hands. Longer weapons are acceptable, bring what you have.

There will be three shields displayed, one for each weapons form. Those who wish to fight a particular form should go to the appropriate shield to find an opponent who also wishes to fight that form then go to the lists to record their choice and be placed in line to fight their bout.

For more information, including information on training in period styles, please contact Guildmaster Silfren the Singer at zebee@zip.com.au or on 043 8181 009 hat is Baronial Day?

It is the first Sunday of each month where we all get together. To show new projects &/or discuss current projects or ideas. Do you have a style of tournament that you would like to try in a informal setting, or would like to make new clothing but are stuck for an idea? Baronial Sunday is what you want to be, come along to Haig Park from midday-ish in garb and bring lunch/afternoon snacks for yourself. We are also encouraging individuals and guilds to come along and give demonstration and classes.

The first Baronial Sunday will be on Sunday 6th March. Both Leta and I will be there from 12:30, painting drop hangings for our marquee, we would also like to start painting drop hangings for the Polit central campsite at festival.

Sir Cornelius will be giving a talk on courtesy in the SCA, I am sure we all could do with a refresher course on this, it will begin at 2 and continue until 2:30.

Other regular activities will also be happening: IKAC at Tuggeranong Archery club from 10 am, singing with Crispin from 1 pm, rapier practice from 1-ish pm, dancing (for this week only) will start at 2.30 pm, heavy practice from 3-ish.

Join in for one or all of the activities, we hope to see many of you there.

And remember if someone criticises your ideas or attempts it means that they are afraid to try themselves, it is better to try and fail then not to try at all. Amateurs built the ark, professionals built the titanic.

Rapier Melee Workshop

To all rapier combatants in our Fair Barony,

Rowany Festival is only 4 weeks away and will feature diverse entertainments for those of the fencing inclination, including a Team Challenge Tourney, Pirate Ship Melee and War Field Melee on the Monday. To take part in these pursuits you must have a melee authorisation.

To this end, a melee workshop and authorisation will be held on Sunday 6 March during Rapier training from 1.30 at Haig Park. If you don't already have a melee authorisation, come along and save the Festival Rapier Marshal the trouble of having to squeeze you into a busy timetable.

If authorised rubber band guns are available, I propose to also authorise combatants in the safe use of RBGs.

Remember, that's 6 March, 1.30 pm, Haig Park.

Call to Arms

Warm greetings to all fighters of Politar chopolis, be you Archer or full harness combatant.

I Edmund, Baron of Politar chopolis have been chosen to lead one side to victory at the upcoming festival war. Thus I call unto you to rally and be counted.

It would be great to see all the fighting households and unaligned fighters standing side by side under the Politar chopolis banner.

I will not be paying for mercenaries nor will I undertake any bargaining to hire groups or individuals. This is a muster to those who wish to fight under their own colours and devices and who would stand as one under the Griffin of Politar chopolis.

I will be personally leading any who rally, so no flinging for me this year...well maybe a little :)

I do have a small supply of tabards (red with white crosses) for any who would wish to wear the colours of this Barony and i have plenty of combat arrows and there are the war shields (thank you Adair)

So....TO WAR!!!!

A Trio of Bear Hunts

The Bear of El Castrejon

To anyone who has compassion for animals, the following extract can be painful reading, and in that case, I advise passing over it. However, it is an eyewitness memoir written by the main participant (King Alfonso XI of Castile) of an actual hunt that occurred in the fourteenth century in the high sierra of Spain. As such, it provides us with insights into the business-like practices and mind-set of aristocratic hunters of that time, which are attainable no other way.

Submitted by Caterina della Pieri

From The Hound and the Hawk: The Art of Medieval Hunting, by John Cummins

To perceive the essence of medieval bear hunting, one can do no better than to read Alfonso XI's detailed account of his own experiences. Here are his descriptions, pragmatic and unembroidered, of the course of [one of] two hunts in the sierras near the junction of the modern provinces of Avila, Toledo, and Madrid, in western Spain. It is in his organization of men and hounds that we see hunting coming closest to tactical war, as opposed to mere pursuit and battle, and his recollections exemplify to the highest degree that obsessive, almost religious, compulsion with which medieval and pre-medieval hunters, having raised a quarry, drew on the deepest reserves of their own and their hounds physical and mental resilience in order to pursue it to its end.

El Rencon and the hill-face above Escarabajosa and El Castrejon and the gorge of Escarabajosa are all one forest, and it is good for bear in winter. The vocerías {beaters lines} are: one from the hilltop Escarabajosa to the hill of Frades, and from there across the summit to the hill of Don Yague to the hill of La Samoza; another from the hill of Don Santa Maria across the summit to the hill of La Samoza. The armadas {lines of stationary hunters, usually with relays of hounds and perhaps Alaunts and Mastiffs} are on the road from Cadahalso to El Adrada: one to the right of Cabaza Pinos, another to the Arroyo del Fresno, and two more on the road itself, between the Arroyo del Fresno and Escarabajosa.

It happened one Monday that we raised two bears there at the hour of terce, and the manner of it was this: all the buscas had returned from the hill and the gathering had been blown, but Martin Gil had continued in his search with about six hounds, and he moved the larger of the bears. He put his hounds after it, and they followed it from the wood of El Castrejon, where it was found, to the gorge of Escarabajosa, and there it turned at bay. Pero Carrillo and Pedro de Mendoza set off to this first bear with another six hounds as relays, and on the way they ran into a second bear and put their six hounds after him. The bear which Martin Gill had moved, the larger of the two, ran on and went through our armada against the forest of Manjavacas before we could get there, but as he went through they put another six hounds after him, making twelve in all. When I reached the armada he had gone through, and I could not overtake him before the forest of Manjavacas.

Ynigo Lopez and Garcia Ruiz went with us, and we followed him close through the forest, and could not hit him with anything until the fall of the night, when he was wounded by a thrown spear. We were short of hounds and huntsmen that day, because all the rest had stayed with the other bear in the gorge of Escarabajosa until they killed him, well into the night. Seeing ourselves overtaken by darkness, we sent Ynigo Lopez and Garcia Ruiz with another four huntsmen on foot to station themselves between the bear and the Sierra de Cenicientos, and to make fires to prevent him escaping that way, and to encourage the hounds not to give up. We and the other huntsmen did the same to cut him off from the Sierra de Guisando.....

And from the first sleep onwards, the hounds gave up one by one, and only Fragoso and Preciado stayed with him. When he saw that only two hounds were left he set off along the road from El Adrada to Las Rozas, and on the road Fragoso gave in, and only Preciado kept up with him to the foot of the Sierra de Guisando. By this time it was midnight, and when we saw that Preciado too had given up we decided that it was poor huntsmanship to pursue the bear any more that night, so we gathered our hounds and went to the village of Las Rozas to sleep. And I sent word to my people in El Adrada to come to my aid with hounds, and especially good scenting-hounds, and they brought me Barbada and Vaquero.

On the following morning, Tuesday, I sent out five buscas, a pair of huntsmen in each, to cast about and find his track, and to ask the sheperds at what hour they had heard a hound with a high-pitched cry, so as to be able to make their search at the place where the hound had given up. Two of these huntsmen came on his trail and blew to the scent, and we joined them. We ordered them to take Barbada and set off after him, and to carry Vaquero on the mule to save his strength, and we followed the trail with the hound on the leash from Guisando to the River Alberche. When we came down to the river, Diego Bravo and Pero Fernandez blew to the scent on the other side; we had sent them there the previous night to see if they could find where the bear had crossed. We forded the river to where they were blowing, and found that they were on his trail.

So we ordered Barbada and Vaquero to be put on his trail with the other hounds, and after a while they came on a bed made by the bear, around the hour of matins; they went on along his fresh trail, and when we knew from the hounds behaviour that we were nearing the place where he was lying they took the leash off Vaquero and he went to bay the bear on top of the Hill of Villa Alba, looking to El Quejigar. When they saw that he was at bay, they unleashed all the hounds, and they came up on him and pursued him until noon, when he was killed on the road from El Quejigar to El Halipar, about a third of a league from the inn at El Quejigar.

To be sure that he was the one we had followed on the previous day, we looked to see if he was wounded, and sure enough we found in him the head of the spear with which he was struck the day before. And with such a hunt as this we prove that when a good quarry is raised and pursued with determination, if the hounds are good, one may be sure of killing him.

Glossary

Voceries: lines of beaters, shouting to scare the quarry away from their position

Armada: a line of stationary hunters, usually with relays of running-hounds and perhaps Alaunts and Mastiffs

Running-hounds: the noisier hounds used to chase the quarry animal over distances (as opposed to the scenting hounds, which quietly locate the quarry for the hunters before the chase begins)

Moving (the quarry): spooking the quarry animal into running out of a hiding-place or rest, so the hounds could chase it.

Relays: groups of hounds held in wait ahead of the expected run of the quarry, released into the chase as or just after the quarry has passed their position.

Alaunts: large hounds similar to greyhounds, but heavier, bred to seize large game animals while running, and bring them down. Regarded as relatively dim-witted, prone to chasing sheep and oxen, they were prized in the hunt for reckless savagery; they were often used simultaneously with the faster, lighter greyhounds.

Mastiffs: large hounds bred for strength and tenacity, sometimes used in hunting as Alaunts were, but mostly used for guarding flocks against wolves, or as guard-dogs for the house.

Buscas: groups of several huntsmen with hounds.

Gathering: the group of aristocratic hunters which meets at a pre-arranged time and place and waits for the

Blowing the gathering, blowing to the scent: coded messages blown on the single-note hunting horns, telling other groups of hunters what is happening and where to go next.

Ferrets in Period

Documentation for the Italian painting, "Pope Celestinus III Grants Privilege of Independence to the Spedale", by Domenico di Bartolo, 1443 says that a young man in the centre was supposed to be from Siena, noting that the Sienese were known for their ostentatious manner of dress, this fellow is supposedly in the height of fashion. He has his pet ferret (with bells on its red collar) sitting on his shoulder.
